

Habitat is a fantasy world made possible by the miracle of telecommunications. It connects people from all over the country together into a single, imaginary, cartoon reality using their Commodore 64 computers, modems and household telephones. Habitat may be the world's first 10,000 player computer game.